A 31-year-old St. Louis man was smothered to death when the grain he was shoveling at the Corn Products Plant moved suddenly and engulfed him. His co-workers and workers enter the grain tanks with safety belts and another worker to pull the person out by rope in such emergencies. It was unusual when the man went in with no one on the other end of the rope.

Industry feeling rail strike's effects

By Bob State
and Jeffrey Peyton
Staff writers

The rail strike is having an immediate effect on shipping prices for local industry, business leaders said Wednesday.

And, they said, a prolonged strike could be devastating, resulting in employee layoffs and a complete halt to some operations.

With the strike beginning Tuesday night at midnight in some parts of the nation, the Terminal Railroad Association of St.

Louis, Granite City, suspended all operations at 3 p.m. Wednesday.

B.P. Sheeley, TRRA general superintendent, said operations were suspended "because of a labor dispute with our employees represented by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers. All positions are temporarily suspended for the duration of such dispute."

Groups affected by the suspension here included the Transportation-Communications Union (clerical and lower employees), Maintenance of Way Employees, American Train Dispatchers Association, American Railway & Airway Supervisors Association, Transport Workers, Railroad Signalmen, Electrical Workers, Railway Carmen, Boilermakers and Sheet Metal Workers.

Peter Wellhausen of Bulk Service Corp., which does about 90 percent of the railroad business at the Tri-City Regional Port District, said Wednesday his company had already felt an impact from the strike.

"This has a tremendously difficult impact on us," Wellhausen said. "If we don't see resumption (of rail service) in the next 48 hours, we're completely shut down and out of business."

"Our ability to keep the cars moving is the main criteria for us to be able to offer our service and offer it quickly."

Bulk Service transports commodities primarily agricultural products from railroad cars and trucks to barges for shipment.

It sees between 15,000 and 20,000 rail cars come in and out per year, Wellhausen said, and employs more than 30 people.

Flood's federal conviction upheld

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

The seven-count felony conviction of Granite City real estate broker Gaye Flood has been upheld by the United States Court of Appeals in Chicago.

Flood had appealed her Aug. 6, 1989, conviction on six counts of making false statements on federal loan applications and one count of conspiracy to defraud the United States government.

She was found guilty by a jury in East St. Louis Federal Court and sentenced by U.S. District Judge William Steihl to serve one year and one day in prison and to pay restitution of $25,900. He also ordered her to serve five years of probation following her release from prison.

Flood was released from federal prison last year and is currently on probation.

In a decision issued June 16, the court of appeals upheld the conviction, but vacated the order of restitution and sent it back to Steihl for resentencing.

According to the court of appeals, the order of restitution was improperly tied only to the conspiracy count and ordered that it be rewritten to reflect the counts where the money was actually lost.

Five of the six false statement counts found that Flood had induced Paul Ray Bowler, a former Granite City alderman and school board president, to make false statements on separate applications for loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

Four of the loans were issued through Delmar Financial in Clayton for the 1984 purchase of apartment buildings on Oakland Drive in Pontoon Beach. The other loan, also in 1984, was issued through the Lomas and Nettleton Co. in Granite City for a house on Pine Street.

Bowler, who pleaded guilty in 1989 to a felony count of making a false statement, spent nearly 20 hours testifying during Flood's trial.

Bowler had been indicted in December 1988 on four counts of making false statements, but three of those counts were dropped in return for Bowler's guilty plea and his agreement to testify against Flood.

Flood was sentenced to two years of probation, 100 hours of community service and restitution of $11,811. The sentence also stipulated that Bowler resign his position on the school board.

Public hearing set on proposed club

Proponents of topless and bottomless entertainment at a nightclub in Madison will take their case directly to the public.

The Madison City Council had Tuesday to hold a public hearing on the project at 7 p.m. Monday, July 6, at the Madison Recreation Center, Seventh and Lee streets.

The hearing was requested by Jim Gitchoff, a Granite City attorney representing the Deja Vu company, at a meeting of the council's Legislative Committee prior to the City Council meeting.

Deja Vu has proposed to renovate the Stages nightclub on Illinois 203 and turn it into a Deja Vu club that would offer live adult entertainment. Deja Vu estimates the change would bring the city at Madison's road to respectability has been a long, hard one, members of Madison's clergy said Tuesday, and allowing topless and bottomless entertainment in the city would be a welcome step.

In letters read at the City Council meeting, the group objected to the Deja Vu's proposal to open a club offering live adult entertainment at the same address right across Illinois 203 in Madison.

Unwanted limbs create hazard

By Bob State
Staff writer

Johny Staggs has the biggest barbecue pit in Granite City.

A five-foot-tall pile of tree limbs lie in the street in front of his home in the 2400 block of Hedges Avenue. His hillside deck and neighbor's yard. The brush nearly blocks the entire westbound lane of the street in front of his home.

When Staggs, 33, called the street department to have the brush hauled away, he said, Street Superintendent "Jug" Harrison suggested he have a barbecue.

Harrison denied the statement.

One of the strange things about Staggs' predicament is the fact that he hasn't a single tree standing in his yard. He has two maple seedlings he planted last year.

"Can you imagine how this would make you feel if you didn't even have a tree in your yard?" Staggs, an inspector at Granite City Steel, asked.

Staggs did contribute a small bit to the pile, though. When a neighbor's tree appeared ready to fall this spring, Staggs agreed to trim it. He set the branches out May 8 and called the street department.

But because the department couldn't get to the brush immediately, the pile has grown.

"Somebody's dumping this stuff in front of my house illegally," Staggs said. "If it would have been in my yard, I would have taken care of it now, you can see fresh green leaves every day."

Staggs said some of the branches came from the alley and some from both ends of the street. He also discovered two cases of empty beer cans in the pile the morning after high-school graduation.

The branches and cans weren't his, he said.

Staggs, who has two daughters ages 11 and eight, said the pile has become a safety hazard.

"Kids around here have to watch out for cars anyway," he said. "One of them is going to step off the curb and get hit — or somebody is going to light it."

Staggs said he has looked into having a bonfire, as one City Hall official suggested. But the city does not issue such permits.

Chief defends 'alternative' tickets

By Bob State
Staff writer

It was ruled Tuesday that "alternative traffic ticket" programs for ordinance violations are valid and unenforceable, but Granite City Police Chief Don Knight said the opinion does not apply in his city.

"I don't think this opinion applies to the way we use the alternative tickets in Granite City," Knight said when provided a copy of a new state legal opinion.

Illinois Attorney General Roland Burris issued the opinion at the request of Madison County's Attorney Bill Haine.

Haine said Tuesday the opinion speaks for itself, he is pleased with it and has had no further comment on the issue until he has had an opportunity to discuss it with local officials.

City Attorney Mark Goldenberg said the opinion "clearly addresses non-home rule municipalities, and is not applicable or relevant to the Granite City situation."

Alternative-ticket programs which have become widely used in recent years, allow municipal police officers the discretion to issue ordinance-violation tickets for traffic violations rather than issuing Uniform Traffic Citations and Complaints.

Under the programs, the offender may pay a fine — usually less than the standard fines and costs — and appear in court. There is no report of the violation to the Illinois secretary of state, and the fine is deposited directly into the municipality's coffers.

Instead, Riley issued an order restraining "anyone from interfering with any of the members ... right to worship."

Brown and his followers at the church, 3400 Maryville Road, called for a vote to secede from the Assemblies of God and become an independent church.

But they failed by four votes to replace Riley as pastor.

Chief Circuit Judge Paul Riley of the Third Circuit Court in Edwardsville ended the restraining order.

The court does not have sufficient information before it to make a judgment as to who is rightfully to be in control of the Tri-City Park Tabernacle Church.

Two of the men arrested — Timothy Higgins, 21, and Jeff Cato, 20, both of Cassville, Mo. — were charged with burglary, a felony.

The third man, Ronald St. Onge, 23, Belleville, was charged with theft over $300, also a felony.

911 system on line with no hitches

By Mike Chambers
Staff writer

Madison County's long awaited 911 emergency response system went on line just after midnight Thursday throughout the county without a hitch, the coordinator of the effort said.

"Everything's working fine, no problems at all," said Dave Whipple, Madison County's 911 coordinator.

"Quite a few" calls have come in since the system went on line, Whipple said, but most turned out to be curious residents instead of callers in despair.

"More people were calling in to see if everything's working to see that everything was working alright," Whipple said.

Of an estimated 200 phone calls to the 911 system over the weekend, only a handful were actual emergencies, he said. No formal ribbon-cutting ceremony to open the system, held Thursday at the county building plaza, to ensure that phone calls went to the proper place.

One non-emergency call came from a 4-year-old girl calling to test the system.

"I called the people back, and they said they were just teaching their child to dial 911," she said.

On Sunday, two local manufacturers in St. Clair County, Madison County residents have been paying an extra 65 cents per month on their phone bills for the last two years to afford the start-up cost of a Madison system.

Telephone company and 911 officials have been working for years to plan the formal ribbon-cutting ceremony to open the system, held Thursday at the county building plaza, to ensure that phone calls went to the proper place.

Cotton-Wasser said a major glitch in the system had been ensuring a 911 call is routed to the proper vicinity for help. This complication caused the opening of this system to be postponed from its planned start-up date in December.

But more than 1,000 test calls later the system is working excellent now and the bugs appear to be worked out, Whipple said.

8,347 tickets during blitz

Illinois State Police Director Terrance W. Gainer said troopers issued 8,347 tickets for occupant restraint violations during the final week of the state-wide safety belt blitz.

"The blitz reminded motorists that safety belts prevent injuries, save lives, and that the Illinois State Police is serious about enforcing occupant restraint laws," said Gainer. "We will continue to promote these facts in the future."

The blitz, which ran from May 17 through June 6, resulted in a total of 8,347 enforcement contacts for occupant restraint violations. Troopers issued 4,144 citations and 3,761 written warnings for violations of seat belt laws.

Additionally, 925 motorists received citations while 127 warnings were written for disobeying child restraint laws. This produced a 32.3 percent increase in occupant restraint citations compared to the same time period last year.

A total of 31,104 occupant restraint warnings and citations have been issued during the three Illinois State Police safety belt blitzes which have been conducted over the past seven months.

Compromise looms on family leave proposal

SPRINGFIELD — Business groups may be ending years of solid opposition to legislation requiring some employers to grant unpaid leave for workers with family emergencies.

The Illinois Manufacturers Association and chief sponsors of the legislation announced Tuesday they had struck a compromise.

A bill pending in the Senate was changed Tuesday to reflect the compromise, exempting firms with fewer than 100 employees instead of the previous 500 required under the original bill. Firms affected by the bill could also be able to get a state income tax credit for any increased unemployment insurance rates if they hired temporary employees who were then discharged when the worker on leave returned.

Senate sponsor Penny Severns, D-Decatur, said she hoped the compromise would bring more Republicans to support the measure.

Senate bill sponsor Greg Baise, R-Alton, said the measure group would bring at least four more Republican votes, or a total of 36 senators, enough to override any potential veto by Gov. Jim Thompson.

Edgar said Tuesday he still had philosophical reservations about forcing companies to grant family leaves and expressed concern for the potential cost of the credit.

Senate bill sponsor Dawn Clark Netsch, sponsored by the bills vetoed by Thompson.

"For a long time the established insurance group would not budge on this," Netsch said in praise of Baise for his willingness to negotiate a compromise.

From the Alton Telegraph

said it wasn't easy to convince his board to back the compromise after years of joining other major business groups in opposing family leave bills.

Baise said more than 50 percent of the 700 companies in the IMA had some form of family leave policy.

The AFL-CIO, which has been pushing family leave legislation for years, also decided to the compromise concessions made by the IMA and plans to block them in the House.

Previous family leave bills have needed the legislature to be voted into law for years, and failed to pass by the IMA and plans to block them in the House.

Like previous bills, the compromise would still allow employees to at least 12 weeks on the job to take up to eight weeks of unpaid leave for family emergencies, such as death, illness or childbirth.

"Hopefully, it will be the first piece of the road," said Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch, sponsored by the bills vetoed by Thompson.

"For a long time the established insurance group would not budge on this," Netsch said in praise of Baise for his willingness to negotiate a compromise.

Fight fire with jobs

The city of Venice is sitting on a powder keg. If the summer heat and the friction of crowds congregating on the streets ignite that explosion, ripples will be felt far and wide.

Summer is known as a time for fun in the sun and jobs that follow the construction and vacation seasons, but Venice officials say those jobs are not available to the city's residents, and that is at the base of Venice's trouble.

"The only thing that is going to help is jobs, job training, and jobs, jobs, jobs," said the Rev. John Henry Williams, a Venice alderman on the front lines.

Weaver Street is the center of frightful activity in the city. Venice aldermen say that at least a half dozen times already this year, crowds numbering more than 100 angry people have complicated normally routine arrests by police.

Why are the people angry? There is a better question: Why are all these people on the street? Don't they have jobs? The answer is: Apparently not. Williams said he talks to the people on Weaver Street and they say, "I need a job. Anything, minimum wage, I don't care," Williams said.

You scoff. "There are a lot of jobs available."

But that is getting them jobs?

County Board Member Don Garrett said he offered a black candidate for a job at the Madison County Courthouse, only to watch the board hire the white son of a board member.

As bad as that may sound on the aspect of nepotism, discrimination in hiring practices is something the County Board wants to completely distance itself from. Garrett said the board has hired other black applicants he has suggested, but he added that this is not the first time an applicant he considered qualified was overlooked.

County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer said he was unaware of any discrimination in hiring practices and said it was certainly something he hoped would never happen. Let's mark that down as the understatement of all time.

It is easy to point to problems, but finding solutions is often the difficult part. In this case, the answers won't come from an individual source.

Public entities do not have the budgets to create jobs. So private industry needs to be sure it opens its doors for employment opportunity to all candidates. And those candidates who, Garrett says, "don't want to be hanging around Weaver Street" need to make themselves available and employable.

"I think most of the nickel and dime drug dealers on Weaver Street are doing it just because they have nothing better to do," Garrett said.

That could be the year's overstatement. Spending your time dealing drugs is not something that is going to reflect positively on a resume. There is a lot of gray area between "nothing better to do" and selling crack on the corner.

Summer is often a season of increased crime, and that increase could be the fuse when the powder keg explodes. But with a combined effort, there is room for improvement and a chance for cooler heads to prevail.

1st Amendment right for all

As Cartoonist Ben Sargent of the Austin American Statesman once said, "There's nothing in the First Amendment that excludes us."

The U.S. Supreme Court reaffirmed that this week when it unanimously struck down a St. Paul, Minn., ordinance banning cross burning, swastikas and other expressions of racial supremacy and bias.

Neither we nor the court — the person — a self-avowed white supremacist who burned a cross in the yard of a black family should go unpunished. But the punishment must be for the act of terrorism. No matter how repugnant, spiteful and obscene the form of expression and the opinion it represents, it is protected by the First Amendment.

"Is that fair?" Assume the opposite. Assume that, instead of banning cross burning and swastikas, the ordinance banned flying the American flag and displaying an X for Malcolm X. We would fight that ordinance to our last breath. To protect our freedom of expression, we must also defend the freedom of those who hold opposite views and defend their freedom with the same vigor we would use to defend our own.

First Amendment rights big enough to include the expressions of Nazis and the Ku Klux Klan — the very scum of society — are certainly big enough to include the comparatively mild expression of nude dancing.

In the discussion of Deja Vu's plans for a topless/bottomless club in Madison, no one has ever questioned the dancers' right of freedom of expression. In fact, the city's obscenity ordinance specifically affirms a person's First Amendment rights, presumably including those involving some form of nudity.

What the obscenity ordinance does prohibit are businesses conducting or condoning activities that are contrary to the public health, safety, welfare and morals of the community. That includes deterring those of low morals from imposing their lack of morals on the rest of the community.

It is this prohibition that Deja Vu seeks to have amended, in fact must have amended in order to operate, and it is this prohibition we believe should be left alone.

Again assume the opposite. A person of high morals unquestionably has the right to express the belief that all nude dancers, and other perceived sinners, are going to hell. That person may even gather together a group of like-minded people and advocate sending all nude dancers, and other perceived sinners, to hell.

But what happens when that person of high morals opens a center that daily dispatches hordes of people into the community who are intent on seeking out every sinner and forcibly sending him or her to hell? That is an activity even a person of high morals would tolerate.

In many respects, the location Deja Vu wants to use, the site of Stages nightclub on Illinois 203 near Interstate 55/70, is an ideal location for a nude dancing establishment. It is in St. Clair County, which already has several nude dancing establishments and is unlikely to object to one more. It is off the beaten path, completely separated from the city proper, and is unlikely to be noticed by those who find its activities offensive.

But Deja Vu's proposed location is within the corporate boundaries of Madison. And Madison, through its obscenity ordinance, has the right and responsibility to protect the public health, safety, welfare and morals of the community.

For Madison to make an exception for Deja Vu, to amend its obscenity ordinance, would be to neglect its responsibility and ultimately leave open the possibility that those of low morals will impose their lack of morals on the rest of the community.

Unfair 'solution' to health costs: Tax hospitals, patients

The following column is by Kenneth Robbins, president of the Illinois Hospital Association.

The proposal by Gov. Jim Edgar to tax hospitals fails the Medicaid test program and is a bad answer to an intractable problem. Yet, many are saying that if it is the only plan there is, then it must support it.

Aside from the fact that the governor's plan is not the only solution, it is based on faulty assertions, may not comply with federal law, and is fundamentally unfair.

The Illinois Department of Public Aid contends that more than 80 percent of the hospitals taxed would benefit financially from the governor's proposal. Nothing can be farther from the truth.

After reviewing the figures made available to them by the Department of Public Aid, hospital report that the state's numbers are just plain wrong.

Approximately 100 hospitals are already operating in the red. Of this number, 38 hospitals operating at a loss would be pushed into a serious negative cash flow situation. Most of these hospitals would be forced into bankruptcy within 12 to 18 months of the passage of this kind of tax.

Even if the hospital tax passes the General Assembly and is signed into law, there is no guarantee that the money derived would qualify for federal matching Medicaid funds.

The regulations governing the ability of states to get federal matching money for provider tax programs are not expected to be issued until after the November elections, long after Illinois' present assessment plan expires.

The only funding that does not require the approval of the Health Care Financing Administration is money from a general revenue increase, a move that Gov. Edgar has adamantly opposed and others believe is unrealistic in an election year.

The governor's hospital tax proposal is not the only game in town. There is an alternative that allows the state to squeeze more money out of the current hospital assessment plan; the state should seriously pursue this option.

The governor's tax proposal violates hospitals' long-standing exemption and threatens the societal benefits derived from that exemption.

Illinois hospitals currently provide more than $700 million in uncompensated care to Illinois residents each year. This does not include millions of dollars that hospitals have contributed to the state over the years by virtue of the chronically underfunded Medicaid program.

The loss of tax-exempt status would have incalculable consequences for hospitals, the communities they serve, and the delivery of health care in this state.

It is basically unfair to force a narrow segment of society to bear the burden of supporting a program that benefits society in general.

A tax on hospitals is actually a tax on hospital patients and those who pay for hospital services. It is a "sick tax" that places a disproportionate burden. The responsibility for funding a hospital program should be shared broadly by all residents of this state.

Finally, the governor maintains that his hospital tax proposal is necessary to save the future of the hospitals that serve the needy.

Hospitals already suffer from a low payment system that only pays 97 percent of what it costs to provide uncompensated care. From a slow payment system that owes hospitals over $300 million with no plan in sight to get off the fiscal deadbeat list.

The loss of tax-exempt status would have incalculable consequences for hospitals, the communities they serve, and the delivery of health care in this state.

It is basically unfair to force a narrow segment of society to bear the burden of supporting a program that benefits society in general.

Big plans needed for centennial

TO THE EDITOR:

On March 9, 1896, the city of Granite City was officially incorporated. The importance of this date is rapidly beginning to take on new meaning, for in less than four years the centennial will be upon us.

The question at hand is what plans are being made to commemorate this event.

It is likely that there will be a traditional parade, perhaps a candlelight vigil and fairs, or a so-called centennial queen to crown, with all the festivities to follow.

But these celebrations, while important at the time, are quickly passing and fading from memory. If serious planning would begin early enough, a really significant and impressive way could be found to give this important event meaning.

Daniel Burnham was one of our state's most innovative architects. While Chicago reared from the devastation of the Great Chicago Fire, he issued the challenge:

"Make no little plans. They have no magic to stir men's blood. Make big plans. Aim high in hope and work. Remember that our sons and grandsons are going to do things that will stagger us."

This is one of the most important quotes I have ever run across, and it can be applied to so many different aspects of life in general.

Perhaps, as our centennial approaches, it will generate community debate and planning and result in a tangible reminder of our rich heritage and the milestone we are about to achieve.

Funding of state services at risk

TO THE EDITOR:

Before the end of this month, the General Assembly will vote — or possibly decide not even to take a vote — on Governor Edgar's proposal to raise the state sales tax.

Granite City area voters need to let their legislators know how they feel about the proposal.

Your legislators already have heard from the state's liquor tax lobby, but they haven't heard enough from the people in their home towns. Make no mistake about it, the liquor lobby packs a strong punch in Springfield.

The state's liquor tax has not increased for the past 23 years. Try to name anything else that hasn't gone up in price since 1969, certainly not the price of a six-pack of beer.

The last time the state's liquor tax increased, a six-pack cost $1. Today, you'll pay three times that.

Yet, the beer and liquor industry is screaming bloody murder about the governor's proposal, which only raises the liquor tax to the national average — an increase of less than a dime on a six-pack.

The governor's proposal wouldn't put a dent in liquor sales. But it would be viewed as a gift for this powerful lobby, and that's what really burns the industry.

It has spent a lot of money contributing to political campaigns, and it doesn't want legislation acting independently of it. Granite City shouldn't stand for this.

The tactics of the liquor lobby are completely self-serving and put the funding of much-needed state services at risk.

I urge all taxpayers — whether you agree or disagree with the governor's proposal — to contact your state legislators and tell them how you feel.

If you need to know the name and telephone number of your local legislators, contact my office at 1 (800) 252-6565. We'll be happy to tell you how to write or call your legislator.

Chemical hazard

TO THE EDITOR:

Regarding your last letter on chemical spills, people should take such matters to heart, before it is too late.

Here is a conversation I had with a 40-year-old woman from a nearby town. She had just lost the shoes of this lady, her husband and two young sons.

She lived on the outskirts and her house had termites. Her kindly neighbor had an outbreak of chemical around her house.

Rain soaked it into the ground

Schmidts worked quickly and with expert care and skill in monitoring my husband's vital signs, asking pertinent questions and administering needed medicine. I am safely getting home to the emergency unit of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, here in Granite City.

The staff on duty in the emergency room also continued to monitor my husband, contact our doctor and get my husband to the Critical Care Unit where he was for the next two days.

We appreciate the nurses on duty in that unit, the ones who accompanied us in Campbell's Ambulance, the driver and attendant who got us quickly and safely to Barnes Hospital, where my husband had a heart catheterization and four bypass heart surgery later on.

God works through these many people "doing their job." We thank Him and ask for my husband's life today. He is coming back. God willing, to a productive and fulfilling life once again.

Mechanic moonlights as singer-songwriter

Jim Smothers hopes for success with Christian album

By Amber M. Rogers
Correspondent

Jim Smothers is moonlighting. By day, the Granite City resident is a TWA aircraft mechanic, but by night, he is a Christian singer-songwriter hoping to be heard on his latest album, "Only One."

"Christian music is really good music. It's different from other music, only in the message. It's a good family-oriented message," Smothers said.

Smothers began Christian songwriting after serious heart surgery in 1982, when he decided to begin studying the Bible. There is a message in the Bible, he said. "It's trying to get across in his music."

"I see society as having little or no values because they don't like having rules. I don't know if anybody should have the right to actually set the guidelines. My guidelines are in the Bible."

"What's right or wrong, true or false is there. I can't think of a better guideline myself," he said.

Smothers is not new to the business of spreading the message. "For the Record" is the name of his own record company that he began more than five years ago when he decided to begin his songwriting and singing career.

He had produced an album, "In That Day," a few years earlier, but the record was not a hit, Smothers said that "I didn't lose any money on it, either."

"I wanted to do another album. I'm still in the process of learning the business. I've been at it five or six years now, and I'm still learning techniques. But the current album is ahead of the first one," he said.

Although the 45-year-old Smothers writes all of the songs, plays all of the musical instruments on board on his latest album, except drums, which are played by known percussionist Jim Cates — and sings all of the songs, Smothers is not working totally alone.

Terry Smothers, his wife, is the person behind the scenes doing production and sound control.

"My wife did a lot of production work on this album. She runs the studio and does the engineering for production. We work together," he said.

"It's an interesting field. Terry having her participate is a very important part of the deal," Jim Smothers said.

Terry Smothers echoes her husband's thoughts about the togetherness their record work allows, but she is modest in speaking of her work on the album.

"I sit there and try to balance the sound. I know what the technical things for what I do are, but I know what I like and what seems to work."

"I enjoy doing it, too. Sometimes I give him an idea, but it is Jim who writes the songs," Terry Smothers said.

She said that kind of chemistry those songs that Jim Smothers writes and sings belong in, he said no one can tell. And he refuses to give his music any definite label, or maybe he just cannot decide himself.

"My music is maybe 1960s rock. There's even some '50s sound to it and possibly 1970s.

"My music is maybe 1960s rock. There's even some '50s sound to it and possibly 1970s.

"There's a lot of different stuff, but I don't think any of it's country. My first album had a country sound, but this one is mostly rock, I guess.

"I could say it's not quite as heavy as Peter Frampton, but it may be some of it," Smothers said.

Singers such as Amy Grant caught Jim Smothers' ear, according to his wife, and when he heard that kind of popular Christian music, "he realized he could write songs for the Lord and still play the songs he liked to play," Terry Smothers said.

The Smothers have three children, all of whom, their mother said, listen to Christian music.

Jim Smothers allows the children to choose the music they want to listen to and he said they do not choose the heavy metal music that today is so popular.

"I don't understand why people even listen to that kind of stuff," he said, "and my children don't like it, either."

He currently has no concert plans in the near future, but he continues to play at area churches and at charity banquets. Several dates in other areas, such as Florida, are pending, but Jim Smothers is hopeful.

"I'll take it as far as it will go," he said. "I just love to play music."

"Only One" and "In That Day" are available at many local Christian book and record stores, such as Jacob's Well Granite City and the One Way chain of Christian stores in the greater St. Louis area.

St. John United Church of Christ celebrates its 130th anniversary

St. John United Church of Christ, 2901 Nameoki Road, will observe the 130th anniversary of the founding of the congregation in 1862.

The celebration will begin with worship at 9 a.m. followed by a 10:30 a.m. picnic at the church, 2901 Nameoki, second pastor of St. John United Church of Christ, Collingsville, will present the sermon at both services of worship.

A church family picnic will be held on the church grounds following the afternoon, with games and events for all ages and a family pot luck dinner will conclude the afternoon activities.

The anniversary celebration will conclude with an evening vesper service and the youth choir from the Hoytton Children's Home presenting a special musical program.

The history of St. John Church began on Saturday afternoon, June 28, 1862. Fourteen Protestants, German farmers met in the New Woods School, which was later called Central School, three miles east of Granite City to organize a congregation for the German Protestants of the community.

The church members were: August Brandes, William Storck, August Ruwisch, Henry Detering, Henry Harmer, Louis Bruene, John Soechting, Christian Pieper, Fred Kahle, Conrad Wolf, Fred Meyer, Christian Burgdorf, George Schaefer and Henry Eberle.

The church was erected in 1863 on two acres of ground, donated by Henry Ruwisch, at a cost of $1,062.

The church was called "The German Christian Church of the Six Mile Prairie."

YOUTH FOCUS: How do you make friends?

By Pam Doepke-Hurd

(Asked of students at Madison Middle School, Coolidge Junior High School and Venice School.)

Cedric Richmond, Madison

"The way to make friends is to hang out with them."

Angela Martin, Venice

"I make friends by being understanding, smart, and nice. You have to go to your school and they don't have any friends there, you could go up to that person and introduce yourself and ask them what their name is and if they have to move, you could help them with that kind of thing. You have to be honest and sincere and be easy to talk to. You also have to be nice and help a person when they are in need."

Baker

Bryon Brown, Madison

"Be nice to them and they'll be nice to you."

Leatacha Haynes, Madison

"You make friends by showing respect to others even if they don't respect you. You have to be honest and sincere and be easy to talk to. You also have to be nice and help a person when they are in need."

"light" district on State Street, a letter signed by nine members of the clergy said the city has only recently begun to live down its "sordid reputation (of) illegal gambling and prostitution."

The letter was read by the Rev. Thomas Succarotte, pastor of the Nativity of the Virgin Mary Orthodox Church.

When Mayor John Bellcoff invited members of the clergy attending the meeting to address the council, Alderman James Caffrey responded,

"I think we can wait to hear this July 6," Caffrey said, referring to a public hearing on the issue approved earlier in the meeting.

None of the other aldermen concurred with Caffrey, however, and the clergy members were allowed to speak.

"I am a State Street graduate summa cum laude," said the Rev. Henry Crippen, pastor of the Word of Life Tabernacle. "I understand, from personal experience, how sensitive this issue is."

Crippen said he has been approached about the Deja Vu proposal by a woman living in Madison. He said she has had four husbands and now has a live-in boyfriend. "Her face I'd recognize her loose."

But, he said, she was adamantly opposed to allowing topless dancing in Madison and asked to allow the ministers going to do about it?

Crippen said he wanted to take his stand as "John Q. Public" and applaud the city government, his fellow ministers and "the ladies for four past husbands" for their stand against the proposal.

"We do not want this club in our area," he said. "This issue will not die. If it goes through, they should be prepared for the community carrying signs and blocking doors."

None of the other aldermen concurred with Caffrey, however, and the clergy members were allowed to speak.

"I am a State Street graduate summa cum laude," said the Rev. Henry Crippen, pastor of trespass on church property and impede the function of the church," Dale Dickey, an interim local church official, said in an e-mail message to the Times.

"The defendant (Brown) has threatened to return to the church and address the congregation," Dickey said.

"He hasn't threatened anything," Brown said Tuesday. "I just wanted to come to church."

Brown said he had planned to appear before the congregation to tender his resignation but was released early.

Dickey could not be reached Tuesday, but the Rev. Dale Edwards, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois District in Carlinville, said he was surprised and disappointed the church had sought legal action.

"I canceled the services so as to have peace. Now, they've gone a step further and have sought a restraining order. I'm not sure that a restraining order was necessary," Edwards said.

Despite being stripped of power by the church district, Brown has maintained that he is still pastor of the church. At the same time, he demands the church pay him approximately $10,000 in severance pay, vacation pay and back salary.

"At this point, I am not going to accept any money we may owe me," Brown said.

Dickey has asked that Brown turn over church documents and also return a 1991 GMC truck that he financed through the church.

"When they pay me what they owe me, I'll sign the title for the truck over to them," Brown said.

On the question of who is the true pastor, Tabernacle pastor Judge Riley wrote: "The court will later address the question of who is appropriately in control of the church."

In the meantime, Brown said he has been conducting services at another church in Granite City.

Tri-City Park Tabernacle will hold its next church services with a new occupant of the pulpit, the Rev. E. Lloyd Shoemaker.

"By then, hopefully, all these things will be behind us," Edwards said.

ple during summer months. Those jobs are at the mercy of the rail industry right now.

"If we don't have the business to do, I don't know what we'll do next," Weinhagen said. He said shutdowns of the Bulk Service would affect marine terminal services as well.

Bulk Service received its last rail shipment Tuesday night. "We have what we have in the rail yard now is all we have," Weinhagen said.

Bob Maxwell, manager for public relations at National Steel's Granite City Division, said the strike has had an immediate effect, but not a dramatic one, on the city's largest employer.

We have enough raw materials to operate a couple of the steel-producing units," Maxwell said. "The problem is getting (steel) coils out to our customers who need them."

And if you can't charge the customer, Maxwell said.

While some coils are going out on trucks, a more expensive shipping method than rail, Maxwell predicted that the increased demand for trucks will escalate shipping costs.

"Trucks will be at a premium, if you're able to get a truck at all," Maxwell said. "I don't think the government will let the strike go on too long."

Other industry in the region was feeling the effects of the first day of the strike.

Jim Mateuk, vice president of Construction in Saugatuck, and delay this week's shipments.

"We don't move a lot by rail, anyway," Mateuk said. "But we were able to delay shipping everything that didn't have to move right away."

Shipments needed immediately went by truck," he added.

For the long haul, it's going to get expensive if we have to ship everything by truck," Mateuk said.

For Big River Zinc, also in Sengel, a rail strike would mean more than just more expensive shipping charges.

A two-week rail strike could mean layoff for Big River Zinc, according to company spokesman Tim McFall.

"We could last a minimum of six weeks before we'd have to consider more shutdowns," he said.

"But we're hoping this strike works itself out by Monday."

kinds of alternative traffic enforcement ordinances are void and unenforceable because they conflict with the Illinois Vehicle Code, in conflict with the Supreme Court's police power doctrine of pre-emption.

Haine has said that using alternative tickets for speeding violations is the equivalent of turn-of-the-century justice, when it was said to be a common practice in some cities to simply fine offenders in order to avoid being charged.

While Illinois law does allow municipal units of government to establish their own traffic ordinances, the Illinois Vehicle Code specifically requires that such ordinances be consistent with the code.

He further states that the code "shall be applicable and uniformly applied in all units of local government."

Burris said alternative ticket programs improperly infringe on the duty of the circuit court clerk to report convictions for traffic offenses to the secretary said.

"They took the program a step too far. When safety is threatened, (offenders) should be issued Uniform Traffic Citations as Attorney General Burris indicates."

Haine has said that using alternative tickets for speeding violations is the equivalent of turn-of-the-century justice, when it was said to be a common practice in some cities to simply fine offenders in order to avoid being charged.

He said the programs also conflict with Illinois Supreme Court rules.

Some municipalities under Rule 526 require alleged offenders to post bail in a specified amount or to be released by posting their driver's license. The municipal enforcement programs avoid compliance with those rules entirely, Burris said.

He said due process is violated under the municipal programs because no provision is made for a hearing on the violation ticket.

Instead, an accused person must risk greater penalties by requesting that a Uniform Traffic Citation and Complaint be issued in order to obtain a hearing.

Burris said alternative ticket programs improperly infringe on the duty of the circuit court clerk to report convictions for traffic offenses to the secretary.

least $100,000 a year in new revenue.

The proposal had been referred to the Legislative Committee, which had been expected to present a recommendation on the issue at the committee's Tuesday meeting, because the proposal would require amendment of the city's 1989 obscenity ordinance.

Madison Mayor John Bellcoff said that as mayor he would refuse to sign any amendment to the obscenity ordinance and as liquor commissioner he would refuse to grant the proposed club a liquor license.

Chairman of the committee he had only been given several hours notice before Tuesday's meeting and asked that the committee delay its decision in order to give him more time to prepare facts, figures and information supporting the proposal.

Alderman George Amisch, chairman of the committee, told Gitchoff that Deja Vu had made several presentations of its proposal already and that he doubted that another similar presentation to either the committee or the City Council would be likely to change anyone's mind.

Amisch, however, said he could see the good in the proposal and he and the other members of the committee agreed to postpone the hearing, if Gitchoff and his clients were willing to bear the expense of notification advertisements in the newspaper.

Gitchoff agreed to pay for two large newspaper advertisements announcing the public hearing.

The City Council voted unanimously to concur with the committee's recommendation.

Paddlers divers should challenge again

By Mike Kelly
Staff writer

The Paddlers diving team may be lean on experience this season, but it's deep in numbers. "We've got 25 kids out for the team," said diving coach Gayle McCormick. "Our biggest weakness is in the boys' division. We only have 10 boys, but the girls are deep."

"Most of those girls are young, so the future looks very good. I think the future of our team is bright." The team's focus of years should be a lot of fun."

Paddlers displayed those talents in Tuesday's SWISA opener. They knocked off Godfrey's Summer Sport 10-2.

"It was a good start for the kids," McCormick said. "They showed good form. But Summer Sport was missing some people. We took advantage of that."

McCormick can't conceal her enthusiasm.

"There's a real strong between the 8-11 age groups," she said. "Those kids are an intelligent group. Diving takes a lot of mental preparation. You have to think out every move. These kids listen to our instructions and their execution is superb."

D. L. Gochanour, LeAnn, Courtney Kriski and John Miller lead the way in the older age groups. Kevin Harris (13-14), Ali Kriski, Ashley Slover (9-10) and Courtney Mathis (11-12) will help get the points in the younger age brackets.

Jenny Baker's addition to the coaching staff can't hurt.

received a scholarship from the University of Kentucky) is the perfect role model for these kids," McCormick said. "She's someone that the kids look up to. She's one of the state that it doesn't matter if you don't have a pool at your disposal, you can do it. You can be as good as you want to be."

"That attitude has rubbed off on our kids. They look up to her. They want to follow in her footsteps."

Slover reminds McCormick of Baker:

"They're so much alike," she said. "Ashley's shown a lot of promise and potential."

"We have a lot of potential on this team. As the years progress, we're going to make the northern half of the state take a long hard look at us here. Jenny planted the seed. Now it's up to these kids to carry on. We're in for an interesting year."

Junior Triplets avenge Wood River loss, 10-0

By Brian Henry
Correspondent

Four days after giving up seven unearned runs in an 8-7 defeat to Wood River, the Junior Triplets were anxious to avenge their mistakes.

Mistakes were few on Wednesday night as Granite City trounced Wood River 10-0 to end a four-game losing streak. Tri-City is 6-6 overall, 8-5 in league play.

Jason Black rebounded from a tough 2-1 loss to Roxana last week by throwing a two-hitter and fanning eight. This time his teammates gave him ample support.

"This was a big win for us so we could gain our momentum going again," said Black, who is now 3-1. "I was going to make sure they didn't get any hits."

Black was just short of his no-hit goal as he gave up a double in the first, a single in the second, and only two baserunners thereafter.

"We've been getting good pitching, but our defense was playing poorly," said coach Doug McInfield. "Iason pitched an excellent game. We took a lot of pressure off him by hitting the ball."

The Junior Triplets didn't exactly pummel Wood River pitching. They had 12 hits, but all were singles.

Post 204 starter Jim Burris lasted only three batters before he was pulled. He allowed a leadoff batter Jason Talley, and Sean Lakatos followed with a hit. Mark Winfield (2 for 3, three runs scored) singled to center to chase home both runners and (see 100, Page 28)

Granite City wrestlers place in Northern Plains Regional

In their first taste of national competition, several young Granite City wrestlers did quite well.

The occasion was the Northern Plains Regional held in Springfield from June 19-21. Competition was held in Greco-Roman and freestyle wrestling, with more than 1500 wrestlers from 28 states represented.

In Greco-Roman, medal winners from Granite City were George Kirgan, 10, who took first among nine wrestlers at 110 pounds (12 and under); and Bob Chausett, sixth among 24 wrestlers at 80 pounds (14 and under). Also winning freestyle matches, but not placing, was Kris Hogan at 103 pounds (15-16 and up).

One other Granite City wrestler, Zach May, placed third at 75 pounds (12 and under).

"We had 18 kids overall up there, and those were the only ones that won a match," said coach Allen Kirgan. "That gives you an idea how tough it was. But I was surprised at how well our guys did. Even the ones who didn't win a match will benefit from it."

The wrestlers sold raffle tickets to help pay for the trip, and would like to thank everyone who bought a ticket as well as Urioste Co. for financial support.

In freestyle, Campbell was second among five wrestlers in the heavyweight (14 and under).

chase Burris to the dugout. "This was a big improvement for us," says Doug Winfield. "We were able to score the runs when we needed to."

Mike Zangari took over for Wood River and pitched five innings of relief. He fared a little better, but still gave up four runs.

Brian Kohler, who had two RBIs, singled in Winfield in the third, but was thrown out going to second. Paul Fisher, running for Black, the runner on base, sacrificed to second, stole third and scored on a wild pitch to make it 5-0.

Andy Roe (2 for 4) had the first of his two hits in the ninth when he brought home Winfield with a hit. Roe scored when Black helped himself with another single to make it 7-0.

Burris re-entered the game in the ninth but ran into more problems. The first three batters singled. Lakatos singled to center to plate Nemeth, and Talley came around to score on an error by the center fielder. Lakatos scored the game-winner on a Roe's second hit of the night.

The Triplets got a break when Tuesday's game with Highland was rained out. They needed the day off in the midst of a back-breaking stretch. Waterfowl blind site drawing Sunday

The public drawing for 27 waterfowl blind sites at Horseshoe Lake State Park will be held Sunday (June 28).

Registration and drawing will be held at the #1 picnic shelter near the park entrance off Illinois 111. Registration will be held from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., with the drawing to be held immediately after the close of registration. Applicants must be present for the registration and drawing.

The length of allocation of the blinds is one year. Maps and other blind information will be available at the drawing. For more information, call the Horseshoe Lake State Park office at 931-0274.

To register, applicants must be at least 16 years old on the day of the draw, present either a 1991 or 1992 Illinois hunting license and state waterfowl stamp (unless exempt by law due to age, disability) and a valid Firearm Owner's Identification Card (or one that has expired within the last 12 months).

Applicants between ages 16-21 who do not have an F.O.I.D. card must be accompanied by an adult who meets the F.O.I.D. card requirements. Those per-

Ex-Warrior Buchek picks NMSU

Russ Buchek, formerly of Granite City High School, has been recruited for the men's soccer team at Northeast Missouri State University.

Buchek went to GCHS until transferring to Lafayette High School in St. Louis in 1987 as a senior year. He had a .06 goals against average at Lafayette last fall. He was honorable mention all-state, honorable mention all-metro, and selected all-conference. He was the team captain and MVP for Lafayette.

Buchek, who was also a varsity wrestler for the Warriors, was selected to play in the Missouri North-South All-Star Game last weekend. He allowed one goal against average for the South team but made a series of great saves prior to the goal. The North won 2-1.

"This should be one of the best recruiting groups in at least four years at NMSU," said Dave Buggi, the coach who recruited Buchek, and six others to play for the Golden Eagles. Buchek, however, is moving on to the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay... "I could use them at my new school. They should do real well there."

for the new coach here."

The new NMSU coach is Mike Lynch, who has served as assistant coach at the Air Force Academy since 1988. NMSU is located in Kirksville, Mo.

'Wild Life' shows growth for Slaughter

By Alan Sculley
Correspondent

In an interview a year ago, as Slaughter's debut album "Stick It To Ya" had soared past 2 million in sales, the group's bassist and producer Dana Strum promised the band wouldn't hurry to complete a follow-up record just for the sake of retaining the group's momentum.

But fittingly for a band that has been on a fast track from the moment "Stick It To Ya" hit the streets in 1990, Slaughter wasted little time in finishing its second CD, "The Wild Life."

Guitarist Tim Kelly, echoing Strum's pledge of a year ago, said, however, that the quick promotion of the new record didn't hurry to complete a follow-up record just for the sake of retaining the group's momentum.

But fittingly for a band that has been on a fast track from the moment "Stick It To Ya" hit the streets in 1990, Slaughter wasted little time in finishing its second CD, "The Wild Life."

"The funniest part of it all was that we didn't feel we rushed the second album, but we went in like 2½ weeks after our last show," Kelly said. "We had so much energy put up from being out there and going through all these things and all the events we had gone through, that we wanted to capitalize on that because we're a band that writes about things that we go through."

Though the members of Slaughter — Strum, Kelly, singer Mark Slaughter and drummer Blas Elias — barely took time to catch their collective breaths before jumping into "The Wild Life" project, they didn't let them from exploring some new wrinkles to go with the band's trademark heavy metal sound.

"Our arrangements have gotten better and our ideas have gotten better and the band is growing," Kelly said. "If you see us in one week, don't listen to the record. I could say it's a growth album. There's a lot of different types of songs on this record. We tried a lot of things that are a little big different than what we did on the first record."

"There's a song called 'Times They Change,' which is a seven-song title, and it's got a lot of different time elements," Kelly said. And that's something very, very different for the band.

"So we tried to branch out and stretch a little bit musically, and I think we grew a little bit and gave people hopefully what they wanted to hear," he said.

For "The Wild Life," Slaughter used the same three-step approach to recording the band followed on its debut. First, the four band members get together and write material. Then they have a session's worth of material, they book a studio and make rough tapes of the songs. Each group member then takes the tapes home for a couple of days, makes any changes they want to and then takes them to the studio again for another session's worth of changes they'd like to make.

After settling on final forms for the songs, they re-enter the studio and record finished versions of the songs from the ground up.

"We have a better perspective on the song because that's why we do it," Kelly said. "We've done it three times. It really helps us. As a lot of bands, what they do is they go to a small rehearsal room, they play really loud, they get up some song ideas and they go right into the recording studio and do the record. They don't have the time to sit down and think about it."

Slaughter shares a June 27 bill at Riverport Amphitheatre with the Jerry Lee Lewis Band and opening act Ugly Kid Joe. Reserved seats for the 8 p.m. show are $23. Lawn tickets are $19.

'Aces' fails to match quality of other summertime sequels

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

There have already been two sequels this summer that are unqualified box office hits, "Lethal Weapon III" and "Batman Returns." The third one, however, "Iron Eagle III" is destined for both box office and critical failure.

It is movie entertainment based on a tired premise. The dialogue is pedestrian. The film generates little excitement or an accordion recital.

Lou Gossett Jr. returns as aviator extraordinaire Chappy Simclar.

Chappy has shown he can fly anything with bombs, missiles or Gatling guns attached. He is seemingly indestructible in the face of enemy air or ground fire.

At the beginning of "Aces," Chappy's mission ends in flying at air shows. The discovery of a cocaine ring operating from a small village in Peru generates sufficient cause for Chappy and his aging wingman buddies to come out of retirement and take on the drug lords.

With the added incentive of avenging the death of a comrade, Chappy's group rounds up an unlikely crew of Air Force colleagues who justify his illegal actions because the Pentagon closed an Air Force base.

Horst Buchholz, Christopher Cazenove and Sonny Chiba co-star as Chappy's friends. Rachel McLish plays a muscular tough gal with a deadly groin kick. Phil Lewis plays a ghetto teen character written into the script for comic relief.

"Aces: Iron Eagle III" is directed by John Glen, known primarily for his direction of critical failure.
